21 November 2025

Dear Hiring Manager

RECOMMENDATION FOR LOH XIN YIN, BACHELORS IN BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION, NUS BUSINESS SCHOOL

I first interacted with Xin Yin in a Telegram group chat in November 2024, and I remember being struck by how her former NUS Students' Union (NUSSU) President Sean Pang had enthusiastically introduced her. He highlighted her stellar portfolio: Communications positions in Harvard Undergraduate in Asia Programmes, Sheares Hall (a NUS hostel), video and photography committees and now, newly appointed as the lead in NUSSU Communications Cell. In my line of work, I see generations of student leaders – they would start excitedly, overcommit, get distracted along the way, and the enthusiasm sizzles away. With Xin Yin, it was different.

Her creativity shows up consistently in work that matters. When Xin Yin introduced the refreshed NUSSU mascot, Sunny, both online and in person, I watched how students responded. At the August 2025 orientation event for Student Life Fair, a business school freshman came up and asked where he could purchase a Sunny plush toy. It was a straightforward question, but what struck me was the context: this happened at an event with over 200 student club booths competing for freshmen's attention. Xin Yin had managed to make the Union mascot, a symbol that could easily feel corporate or impersonal, into something students actively wanted to connect with shows her instinct for creating authentic brand resonance.

This same instinct shaped her work on the NUS Yusof Ishak House Reopening in October 2025. Rather than defaulting to generic institutional messaging, Xin Yin came in with ideas and saw them through from concept to execution. She crafted a clear story of NUSSU's legacy and aspirations that felt genuinely warm and real, keeping the student voice at the centre. The outcome didn't just look polished, it made students feel the Union was theirs.

Xin Yin's approach to social media reflects this same thoughtfulness. As the person chiefly responsible for NUSSU's Instagram presence (@mynussu), she's highly aware of her day-to-day work. She understands what engages students and translates that into posts they actually enjoy and share. She uses Sunny as a consistent thread. This familiar anchor builds recognition and trust. This strategic consistency has made Sunny not just a cute character, but a genuine bridge for the NUSSU brand. Many colleagues, myself included, have commended her for developing NUSSU x NUS120 merchandise that refreshed Sunny as a meaningful symbol of Union identity.

Beyond creative execution, Xin Yin's communication skills make her invaluable in collaborative environments. She translates student-driven initiatives into messages aligned with NUS values, and she coordinates smoothly with various NUS departments. Her work is detail-oriented and remarkably dependable even under tight timelines.

Whoever hires Xin Yin will find someone who shows up with ideas, follows through with care, and makes everyone around her better at their jobs. She's the person you want in the room when you're building something that matters.

Regards

Ms Elissa Chia
Associate Director, Communications
National University of Singapore
Office of Student Affairs

NUS National University of Singapore

6 November 2025

To Whom It May Concern

I had the pleasure of working with Ms Loh Xin Yin during her term as Communications Secretary of the 46th NUS Students' Union Executive Committee.

Throughout her term, Xin Yin served with great dedication, particularly as she led publicity efforts on behalf of the Union during NUS' 120th anniversary celebrations. There were numerous collaborations between the University and the student community, and it was through Xin Yin's strong leadership, creativity, and resilience that many of these joint projects achieved great success.

One of Xin Yin's noteworthy achievements was her pivotal role in rallying the support of NUS students for the NUS120 Charity Hongbao Walk. Her commitment and energy resulted in a strong turnout of nearly 1,200 students, staff, and alumni participating in the 8km walk across campus. The event raised over S$880,000 in support of NUS students facing financial challenges. As Communications Secretary, Xin Yin also led publicity efforts for other key Union events, including the NUS120 Open House and the NUS Students' Union Rag & Flag, which raised over S$256,000 for 16 social service agencies under Community Chest.

Xin Yin is very well-liked by the staff from the NUS Digital Marketing team for her selfless dedication and pleasant disposition. She is a fast learner who consistently demonstrates enthusiasm and initiative in all the tasks she undertakes. Both a team player and an effective leader, she guided her Communications Secretariat with integrity, clarity, and empathy. Even when faced with challenges, she remained composed and resourceful, always finding ways to overcome obstacles.

She possesses a strong sense of responsibility, excellent cross-functional skills, and the ability to engage effectively with people at all levels. I am confident that Xin Yin will be an invaluable asset to any organisation she interns with.

Sincerely,

Lawrence Chai
Head, Digital Marketing
Office of University Communications
National University of Singapore